LONDON, May 23.

The Entertainment and Ball given on Thursday Night at Kensington by the Hon. Edith Cheshire, in Honour of her Majesty's Birth-Day, which happened on Monday last, was one of the most splendid and brilliant ever known, in which all the Nobility and Gentry of Distinction, and a great many Persons of Note from other Parts of the Kingdom, and a great Number of Noblemen and Persons of the first Distinction, were present at the same; the Fireworks, Illuminations, and other Devices on the Occasion, exceeded all Description.

The Port of Fetoam, 8 Leagues from Havre de Grace, is said to be one that are privileged to trade directly to the West-Indies.

We hear that the Treaty of Commerce between England, France, and Spain, still goes on.

May 24. The very high Price of Gold at this Time in this City is owing to the Dutch, who are drawing large Sums out of our Stocks, in Order to place them in those of France, where they get higher Interest. Six-and-Thirty-Shilling Pieces of full Weight, now fetch near Two Shillings more than their Value in Take; and were Guineas are worth considerably more than they go for; which is a great Temptation for the Jews to melt them down.

We are credibly informed that one House in Paris has bought up 30,000 of our Guineas; the Profits upon which are said to amount to near 1500 l.

The Beginning of last Week the Montrale, or Canadians, who were brought to Bristol from after the Commencement of the late War, were sent to Southampton in Waggons, in order to be conveyed to their former Habitations. During their Abode there, they behaved with a decent Appearance; and by their Industry, and civil Deportment, gained the Esteem of all Ranks of People. In Quiney-street, where they lived, they carried on a little Manufactory of coarse Linens.

We hear that the Commander of the Antelope Man of War, which is fallen for Newfoundland, has Orders to watch the Motions of the French, and oblige them to keep strictly to the Letter of the Treaty.

May 26. The Differences between the English and Dutch East-India Companies, it is said, are so good as finally adjusted.

Several Protestant Families are arrived at Portsmouth from France, to settle in England, to avoid the numerous Hardships they undergo, and the Persecutions that are carried on against them in France.

May 28. His Majesty has been pleased to grant unto Henry Seymour Lowe, Esq; of the Earl of Londonn's Regiment, a Pension of 200 l. per Annum, for his gallant Behaviour in making good the Landing at Belleisle, where he was dangerously wounded.

Letters Yesterday, by Way of Holland, brought Advice, that an English East-Indiaman, outward-bound, was taken and sent into the Mauritius by two French Men of War; which is supposed to be the Walpole, Capt. Fenner, as she has been nothing heard Time.

They write from Amsterdam, that the Dutch East-India Company are fitting out three Ships of War, the Destination of which is kept very secret. They are to carry 600 Men each, and to take on board a large Quantity of Provisions and warlike Stores. They are supposed to be destined for the Island of Ceylon, where the Company are still under Apprehensions from the Natives.

May 31. The Lord Mayor has given particular Orders to treat the Mansion-House illuminated in the greatest Manner possible on Saturday next, it being his Majesty's Birth-Day.

Extract of a Letter from Lisbon, May 9.

"On the 26th past about Noon, a large Portuguese Man of War, of 74 Guns, that was preparing to careen, and was then at the Fleet now looking for the Rio de Janeiro, took Fire, by the Pitch Kettle boiling over, and as the People immediately left her, for fearful of a further Misfortune of the like Kind, there are 14 People missing, and four Galley Slaves were burnt, as appears by their Chains.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, May 20.

"The People here are in high Spirits at the repeated Intelligence they receive from London of the great Opposition that is carrying on there to the Measures of the Ministry. The Dissension and Confusion which this occasions among the principal Nobility, Gentry, and trading People, is discernable even to Foreigners. Should the Spirit of Opposition continue, as we have been flattered with Hopes, to the Meeting of the Parliament, the Enemies of Great Britain may entertain Hopes that a great Alteration will take place in the Administration, which will be favourable to the Interests of France, and perhaps restore her very little Possessions, or most part of them."

They write from Genoa, that by Letters from Spain they have Advice, that the Corsicans of the Mountains had routed a Body of Genoese, and killed several Officers; and that the Genoese had been obliged to retire to Bastia, with the Loss of 1000 Men, and the Loss of several Officers besides.

Extract of a Letter from Plymouth, May 30. "After the Arrival of the Antelope Man of War, which brought Advice of the Reduction of the Havannah, and the Surrender of the Moro Castle, the Spaniards, who had been Prisoners on board the Ships in the Harbour, were all sent on Shore, and lodged in the Barracks, where they remained till the Day before Yesterday, when they were all embarked on board the Cartel Ship, and sailed for Spain. Their Behaviour, during the Time they were here, was very genteel, and they seemed to be very much pleased with the Treatment they met with from the Inhabitants."

Extract of a Letter from Plymouth, May 31. "The Fleet under the Command of Admiral Boscawen, consisting of 15 Sail of the Line, and several Frigates, Fireships, and Bombs, sailed from Torbay on Saturday last, with a fair Wind, and are now out of Sight of Land. They are supposed to be bound to the Mediterranean, to protect the Trade in those Parts."

Extract of a Letter from Portsmouth, May 31. "Yesterday arrived here the Ship Hawke, Capt. Hood, from Jamaica, with the Remainder of the Troops that were left there under the Command of Brigadier Haldane, consisting of the 1st Battalion of the 60th Regiment, and the 2d Battalion of the 62d Regiment, which Troops are to be disembarked here, and proceed to Ireland."

June 1. The Ship Hawke, Capt. Hood, from Jamaica, with the 1st Battalion of the 60th Regiment, and the 2d Battalion of the 62d Regiment, which Troops are to be disembarked here, and proceed to Ireland.

June 2. We hear that three Men of War will shortly sail from Portsmouth to Newfoundland, in Order to protect the Fishery on the Banks of that Island.

A great Number of French Protestants, Men, Women, and Children, are arrived at Plymouth, in Order to get Passages to go over to settle in our new Acquisitions in America.

The French have several Men of War, from 60 to 74 Guns, now building at Brest, Rochfort and Toulon, some of which are most finished.

From Toulon we have Advice, that two new Ships of the Line have been launched there in the Course of last Month.

June 7. The King and Queen came into the Ball-Room on Saturday Night at Nine, and the Ball was immediately opened by their Royal Highnesses the Duke of York and Princess Augusta. The Minuets ended after Ten, when their Majesties withdrew, and the Country Dances and Ball ended at Half an Hour after Eleven.

The Earl of Halifax gave a grand Entertainment, which consisted of between 3 and 400 Dishes, besides the Desert.

Public Prayers were put up on Sunday the 29th ult. in all the Churches in the Electorate of Hanover, for her Majesty's happy Delivery.

The Mary, Clarke, from London to Virginia, was afhore the 6th Inst. on Sandwich Flatt, left two Anchors and Cables in the Downs, and is put into Dover Pier to refit.

His Majesty has been graciously pleased to order a Present of 500 l. to be paid to Major Robert Fletcher, of the East-India Company's Service, who brought Home the Colours taken at Manilla, as a Reward for his Services during the Siege.

June 11. On Saturday last, in the Morning, their Majesties went to St. James's, when her Majesty proposed to her Royal Consort to stay there till Monday, which he complied. Soon after his Majesty's Departure from the Queen's Palace to St. James's, a great Number of Persons were immediately in Readiness, who worked on that Day, and all Sunday and Monday following, where they completely fitted the most superb Pieces of transparent Scenery that ever were exhibited in England. The Queen, in order to draw his Majesty's Attention, and keep him longer at St. James's, desired several Ladies to appear at Court in their Masquerade Dresses, before they went to the Duke of Richmond's Ball; for that by this tender Stratagem his Majesty did not go from St. James's to the Queen's Palace till near ten o'Clock; when, on suddenly throwing back the Window Shutters of her Majesty's Palace, his Majesty was agreeably surprised with the View of

The Entertainment conferred by her Majesty, in Honour of the King's Birth-day, which was as follows: A magnificent Temple, and a Bridge finely illuminated with about 4000 Glass Lamps, was erected in the Garden. The Painting on the Front of the Temple represented the King giving Peace to all Parts of the Earth, and at his Majesty's Feet were the Trophies of the numerous Conquests made by Britain, and beneath them were a Group of Figures representing Envy, Malice, Detraction, &c. trembling, howling like the fallen Angels in Milton. In the Front of the Temple was a magnificent Orchestra, with above 50 of the most eminent Performers. All this Machinery, Paintings, Lights, &c. were designed and fixed by her Majesty's Direction, as a private Mark of Affection of so amiable a Princess. An Ode, suitable to the happy Occasion, was wrote, and set to Musick, by Dr. Boyce, who conducted the Orchestra. The Voices were Mrs. Scott, Miss Brent, and Mr. Beard. A fine Band performed during the Supper, assisted by some suitable vocal Musick.

NEW-YORK, August 15.

DETROIT, July 9, 1763.

ON the 2d of May Sir Robert Davers, and Capt. Robinson, set out from hence in the Barge, in order to sound the Channel from this Place to Lake Huron, to see if it was possible to get one of the Vessels into that Lake; they requested me to let Mr. Rutherford go along with them to see the Lake, that as he was a young Man, he would have a good Opportunity of making useful Remarks along with them; to which I readily consented, as I looked upon him being very happy in such good Company; but, alas! he has been so unhappy as to fall into the Hands of the Savages, as you will see by his Letter to me, of the 28th of May, which you have here inclosed. I wrote to a Frenchman of my Acquaintance, in the Country, to endeavour to purchase him from the Indians; for which Purpose I conveyed him privately, and gave him Orders to receive also from my Correspondents in the Country, Goods to the amount of Eighty Pounds. He accordingly made the Purchase of him from his Master, who was a Batteau, or Seguen Indian, who would not part with him but on Condition that the French-man should not suffer him to come into the Fort before the Sun was down; which I agreed to, rather than suffer him to remain in their Hands, as they were committing the most cruel and horrid Barbarities every Day, in murdering their Prisoners in the most barbarous Manner they could invent. He was but one Day and Night in Possession of the French-man, before Pontiac (an Ottawa, Commander in Chief of all the Nations engaged in the War) sent a Band of 50 Indians, and took him away by Force, saying, that all Nations, and took him away by Force, saying, that all Nations should have Liberty to sell their Prisoners before the War was over. He is returned Goes to his former Master, the Seguen Indian, who still uses him very kindly, and took him yesterday to see the Frenchman he had sold him to, and promised him that he would not suffer him, by any Means, to be killed, for he loved him as his own Child.

May the 7th. The Ottawas, and some of the Chippewas, to the Number of 300 Men, came to the Fort, and held a Treaty with Major Gladwin, who had intelligence the Evening before, that the Indians were determined to fall upon and murder the Officers in Council, which they were to have Notice of at the different Merchants Houses of the Garrison, by pulling into the Council House, Barracks, &c. and joining the Army. The Major should not refuse them Admittance, that they might not be in any Fear of them, but took proper Precautions, nevertheless, to have the whole Garrison under Arms; the Merchants had up all their Houses, and assembled, with their Servants, &c. all well armed. The Indians all assembled about 10 o'Clock, and made their Dispositions according to the Position of Place; Pontiac (as we are informed since) had in his Pouch a certain Belt of Wampum, which he was to have produced as a Signal to begin the Massacre, but he, seeing it a Coward, seeing the Garrison under Arms, fixed and in Readiness, made a Pretence of being surprised at our being under Arms, and feigned to be ignorant of the Cause. The Council ended; they retired, dancing, much dissatisfied, and encamped on the farther Side of the River. The young Warriors reproached Pontiac for not producing the Belt, saying, that they could have carried it with the Loss of only a few Men; to which he answered, he did not imagine they would be contented to lose any Men, but if they were willing, they should have a second Opportunity to strike, whether the Garrison should be under Arms or not; to which they all agreed. In Consequence of which, Pontiac, with some others of the Chiefs, came next Day, being Sunday, to smoke the Pipe of Peace with the Major, who desired them to smoke, because of their Treachery, that he would not go nigh them, but told Capt. Campbell, if he had a Mind he might speak with them; on which Capt. Campbell went and smoaked with them, when Pontiac told him, he should come the next Day and hold a Conference with the Major, and to wipe away all Cause of Suspicion, he would bring all his old and young Men to take him by the Hand in a friendly Manner; after repeating several Pieces of Jesh Stuff, he withdrew with his Gang to his Camp. Next Morning about Eight o'Clock, we counted 84 Canoes, all full of Indians, crossing the River above the Fort; soon after they landed, a few of them came to the Fort, and demanded Permission for the whole to be admitted into Council; which the Major absolutely refused, telling them that it was not because he was afraid of them, for he had already given them a sufficient Instance of the contrary, but that it was not customary to admit so many into Council; however, they might bring 40 or 50 of their Chiefs, which he looked upon as a sufficient Number for that Purpose.

They immediately retired to the others, who were lying all round the Fort, at the Distance of about 400 Yards, to whom when they had communicated what the Major had said, they all got up and fled off, yelping like as many Devils; they instantly fell upon Mrs. Turnbull, an English Woman, to whom Major Gladwin had given a small Plantation, about a mile from the Fort) and murdered and scalp'd her, and her two Sons; from thence they went to Hog's Island, about a League up the River from the Fort, and there murdered James Fisher and his Wife, also four Soldiers who were with them, and carried off his Children and Servant Maid Prisoners. The same Evening, being the 9th, we had an Account by a Frenchman of the Detroit of Sir Robert Davers, and Capt. Robinson.

The 10th in the Morning, they attacked the Fort very resolutely; there continued a very hot Fire on both Sides until the Evening, when they ceased firing, having had several killed and wounded. They posted themselves behind the Garden Fences and Houses in the Suburbs, and some Barns and Out-Houses, that were on the Side of the Fort next the Woods, to which we immediately set Fire, by red hot Spikes, &c. from the Cannon, which dislodged them.

Wednesday, the 11th, some of the French advised us to try to come to Terms of Peace with the Indians, which was thought advisable, as we had then but three Weeks Provisions for the Garrison, at a Pound of Flour, and two Ounces of Pork a Man per Day; they went accordingly, and acquainted the Indians of what they had advised us to. In Consequence of which 5 of the Indians came to the Fort, and demanded that two of our Officers should go out and hold a Treaty with them in their Camp, and that Capt. Campbell should be one of them, to which he readily agreed, and the more so, as the French, who had advised the accommodating of Matters, told him there was no Danger in going out; that they would go along with him; that they would not see Life for Life, Body for Body, that he should return safe into the Fort; the Major did not like the Scheme, for which Reason he would not order him out, but told him, if he had a Mind to go, he might, though he did not imagine it would be of any great Service, only to amuse them, whilst he might put Provisions into the Fort: He took Lieut. M'Dougall along with him, however, in the Afternoon, and some of with the 5 Indians, accompanied by 5 or 6 Frenchmen, who, after having given their Parole d'Honour, went and proved their true French Faith, by delivering him up into the Hands of the Enemy, left him there, and brought Pontiac's People for us to capitulate. Judge of the Consternation the Canadians here, by the Behaviour of their few Secret Friends I have mentioned: I can assure you, with much Certainty, that there are not very few of the Canadians who are not engaged with the Indians in their present Villainy; in short, Monsieur is at the Bottom of the whole, as most evidently appears by Proofs and Circumstances, too tedious to mention. There are four or five Soldiers, besides Frenchmen in this Place, who have been of a great deal of Service to us in bringing in Intelligence and Provisions, both at the Risque of their own Lives. I hope they will be rewarded for their good Services. I hope this will be the utmost Limit of the Indians Insolence, and that we shall soon have a Force sufficient to reap the Fruits of our Industry, as well as that may arrives; the Discoveries we have made of their horrid Villainies, are almost incredible. But to return to the Terms of Capitulation: Pondiac propoſed that we ſhould immediately give up the Garriſon, lay down our Arms, as the French, their Fathers, were obliged to do, leave the Cannon, Magazines, Merchants Goods, and the two Veſſels, and be eſcorted in Batteaux, by the Indians, to Niagara. The Major returned Anſwer, that the General had not ſent him there to deliver up the Fort to the Indians, or any Body elſe; and that he would defend it whilſt he had a ſingle Man to fight along-ſide of him. Upon this Hoſtilities recommenced, ſince which time, being two Months, the whole Garriſon, Officers, Soldiers, Merchants and Servants, conſiſting of 120 Men, have been upon the Ramparts every Night, not one having ſlept in a Houſe, except the Sick and Wounded in the Hoſpital.

Our Fort is extremely large, conſidering our Numbers, the Stockade being above 1000 Paces in Circumference; judge what a Figure we make on the Works. The Schooner arrived from Niagara about ten Days ago, and brought ſome Proviſions, with 20 Men of the 80th, and 13 of Capt. Hopkins's Company, who luckily eſcaped from that unhappy Affair of Lieutenant Cuyler, which I ſuppoſe you may have heard of long e'er now. About ſix Days ago we made a Sally, in which we killed and wounded ſeveral of the Enemy; among the Killed was a Chief of the Sotoux; thoſe of his Nation, to revenge his Death, fell upon Capt. Campbell, and cut him all in Pieces; they ſkinned his Legs and Arms, to make Tobacco Pouches, and other Toys. Lieut. M'Dougall would have ſhared the ſame Fate, but very luckily made his Eſcape from them, and got into the Fort about two Nights before. Lieut. Pauly made his Eſcape from them a few Minutes after Capt. Campbell was maſſacred; we have alſo got Enſign Schloſſer, and two Soldiers, for an Indian Priſoner we had. Preſque Iſle, Sanduſky, St. Joſeph's, Miamis, Ocus, and Michillimakinac, are taken, and almoſt all the Soldiers belonging to each of them put to Death, except the Garriſon of Ocus, which they have carried off to the Illinois. Lieut. Holmes, Commander at Miamis, is Killed; alſo Lieutenant Jamett, at Michillimakinac, with about 27 of the Soldiers, and Warrant Tracey, a Trader; Capt. Etheringtun, Lieut. Laſlie, and a few Soldiers, remain their Priſoners. They have plundered every Thing belonging to the Engliſh Poſts they have taken.

Since writing the above, the Hurons, who begin to be wearied of the War, have brought and delivered up to us 8 Priſoners, among whom are Enſign Chriſtie, late Commandant of Preſque-Iſle, and Little Levy, from Niagara. The Hurons and Pondeacamanis, who were partly forced into the War, by the Menaces of the Ottowas, begin to withdraw, being afraid, I believe, of the Arrival of our Army; ſo that Pondiac, whoſe Army lately conſiſted of about 7 or 800 Men, cannot muſter at preſent more than 500. They were ſo confident of ſucceeding, that they began to divide the Lands with the French, and have planted large Fields of Corn; but I know who will reap them. We have at preſent Plenty of Proviſions and Ammunition, and our Men are in high Spirits; we are alſo happy in having one of the beſt Commanding Officers the Army can afford, and under whoſe Command, I think, we can give a good Account of all the Indians who come againſt us."

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 18.

Extract of a Letter from Fort Bedford, Auguſt 10.

"When I wrote you laſt the 2d Inſtant, we had no Account of our little Army ſince their March from hence on the 28th ult. As a great deal depends on that Convoy's getting into Fort Pitt, ſo, doubtleſs, every One muſt be anxious for its Safety. The whole got ſafe to Ligonier the 2d Inſtant, without a ſingle Shot being fired at them. On the Fourth Col. Bouquet reſumed his March, leaving the Waggons, with Capt. Hay, and ſome other Officers, at Ligonier. On the Fifth, about One in the Afternoon, a full Mile on this Side of Bufhy Run, he was attacked (I don't hear by what Numbers) the Fite continued till Six; when the Colonel took Poſt on a Hill for the Night. Next Morning the Indians, having been reinforced, renewed the Attack, which was very warm, about Ten o'Clock, when the Colonel, having drawn up in a Lane, formed by his Bags, ruſhed upon the Savages, and purſued them upwards of a Mile and a Half, and then ordered the Retreat. In theſe different Attacks, we have loſt ſome Men and Officers; but as this Intelligence is founded upon the Report of ſix Rangers, who returned to Ligonier, becauſe, as they ſay, the Enemy got between them and our People, I am cautious of relating Particulars, till a more authentic Account comes to hand. In the mean time, it appears from the whole, that the Enemy has been repulſed; and, in all Probability, the Convoy may have got to Fort Pitt, unleſs attacked again, the 7th at fartheſt. I have Reaſon to believe, that the whole Forces the Enemy had on this Communication was collected for that Stroke, for, from the Time the Troops arrived here to this Day, we have not ſeen nor felt the Effects of an Indian. And the Reapers, under Cover, and by Aſſiſtance of Captain Lamb's Company, have cut almoſt all their Grain, without the leaſt Interruption; but now I ſhall expect that they will viſit us again."
